

I'm no longer a victim
of sexual assault.
I'm a survivor

Zach Miller was just ten years old when he was taken from his family's farmyard in Whitewood, Saskatchewan. Miller's kidnapping led to Saskatchewan's first AMBER Alert. Miller was abducted by convicted pedophile Peter Whitmore. He was held captive for two days in a farmhouse, where he was raped, beaten, verbally abused, threatened, and shown child pornography. The ordeal only ended after a farmer noticed a van that matched the description of the vehicle in the alert.

Miller has since requested that a publication ban on his name was lifted so he could share his story. Miller wants to use his story to prevent assaults like this from happening to other families, by advocating for firmer penalties against those convicted of crimes against children.
